

Judy Klitsner
Shabbat Scholar in Residence

“Let All the Daughters Live”:
The Midwives of Israel and the Seeds of Identity

At first glance, the chronicles of the Tower of Babel and of the heroic midwives of Egypt seem to have very little in common. Yet the use of rare language and themes draw them together, exposing common themes of subjugation and the suppression of identity. We will note the human endeavor to reclaim identity, and then search for a nexus between identity and the beginnings of the redemption process.

Rupture and Repair in the Joseph Narrative:
A Story of Words, Money, and Power

Joseph's assertion of power over his brothers is met with a violent and exploitative response. We will examine the lingering damage—and the complex process of repair—to a boy who was sold for twenty pieces of silver and to the brothers who sold him.

Slumbering Prophets and the Escape from Self:
How the Book of Jonah Mines and Undermines the Story of Noah

Two prophets, Noah and Jonah, seek to escape their responsibilities to help rescue humanity. As a result, both run the risk of losing themselves, one in alcoholic oblivion, the other by falling into a coma-like slumber. After a close reading and literary comparison of these two stories, we will address the question of humanity's potential for genuine and enduring self-transformation.

Shabbat, December 18-19, 2009

Lincoln Square Synagogue
200 Amsterdam Avenue
New York, New York

About Judy Klitsner

A senior faculty member in Bible at the Pardes Institute of Jewish Studies in Jerusalem, Judy Klitsner weaves together traditional exegesis, modern scholarship, and her own original interpretations that are informed by close readings of the text. She speaks internationally and is the author of the new book, Subversive Sequels in the Bible (Jewish Publication Society).
www.JudyKlitsner.com